

Where's my water?

Depending upon your region of the US, water may or may not be a pressing issue. Regardless of where you are, it is costing you money. Do you know how your property's water consumption and costs are trending? Do you know what type of water is driving increases in your bills?

EnergyPrint® just released our new Water Profile which allows you to answer those questions at the blink of an eye. Using EnergyPrint's familiar and intuitive tools, you can now visualize and act on yet another growing operating cost for your property.

Again, EnergyPrint® does the heavy lifting for you. We decipher the water bill and dissect it into valuable segments, isolating each water type for actionable insights. Whether it is potable, irrigation, sewer, storm water fees or even cooling tower water, EnergyPrint's new Water Profile will bring the data into your hands.

If you would like to learn more about this new feature or to begin tracking your water, please give us a call.
